Statement on conflict materials

Dear Sirs,

In reply to your recent inquiry regarding the use of conflict minerals in our products we would like to inform you of the following:

The materials in connection with the soldering points in our products contain tin (Sn), which is not originating from conflict material mines.

All other listed materials by EICC are generally not part of our products and thus the products comply with the EICC standard.

We hope that this information could satisfy the questions you had in regard to the use of conflict minerals in HAHN products.

In case of any further questions or queries regarding the above mentioned please do not hesitate to contact us again.

Best regards
